Abstract

Addressing the female personality is one of the most important issues in women's society. Women's personality from different perspectives such as; Philosophical, mystical, religious, anthropological, sociological and psychological have been studied. In this study, we seek to identify the female personality from Rumi's point of view and we intend to consider his mystical and anthropological thought about personality. Let's study women. Rumi's view of women and women's personality is positive and women's society and the position of women is of great importance to Rumi, so that he considered women as a manifestation of truth and in a practical way treated women with respect and kindness. Although Rumi in some places considers the intellect of women lower than men, but this issue has never caused him to look at women as a weak and ignorant creature and has tried to make the people of his time look at women positively and in this way He has spared no effort to respect women. This study seeks to analyze Rumi's ideas about women's personality. The study method in this research is content analysis.
